No article of m

sections and with ferm of Consumption of the Spinal Nerves known as Tabes Boreales, and Tabes misenterica, have their sad and origin in diseases of Pelnic Visco-ra. Hence the want of success on the part of old school practice in treating symptoms only.

Dr. Anders stone, Physician to the Troy Ling and Heglenic Institution, is now engaged in treating this class of modern unlandless with the norse stonishing success. The treatment adopted in the Institution is new; it is based upon scientific principles, with new discovered repedies, without minerals or poisons. The facilities of circa are each that patients can be cured at their tones, in any part of the country, from accurate description of their case, by letter, and have the medicines cent them by mail or express. Frinted interrogatories will be forward do napplication.

Mr. Mallory is ever plain, though forcible in the annunciation of his fixed principles, and none who heard him last evening can doubt his lidelity to the Union or his loyalty to the Commonwealth. The storm of applause which marked the conclusion of his address, and the frequent demonstrations of sympathy which were made at intervals during the hour he claimed the attention of his audience, were most convincing proof that he enjoyed the approbation of the public beart. The Ilon. William F. Bullock being present, was called upon the standafter Mr Mallory had concluded, and, in a response, eutertained the andience until the hour of adjourt ment in an address which was characterized h even more than his usual vigor, force, and eloquence. To Judge Bullock the Union is a prolific theme, and no statesman of our time is more devoted to the cause, and there are few who can bring to its support equal power of argument or like force of eloquence. LOUISVILLE JOURNAL PROF. TIST FOR VINEQUE -AS vinegar is an article much used by soldiers and sailors, it is imperiant to have it pure. The following simple process will enable almost any one to detect most of the leleterious acids used in its adulteration: Put a small quantity of vinegar into a clear white glass or bettle, and pour e faw drops of ecelute of lead (-uz r of lead) into it. If pure, no change will take place, but if impure it will here a cloudy or milky appearance. By putting a small quantity of snlphuric acid (vitriol) to some water or to pure vinegar, the test can be proved. t., aged 7J years. INFANTINE NOMENCLATURE.—What shall we name the taby? This is the important question that interferes with papals study of his rewaps per. Long before the baby's litth, the baby's mother, whose privilegs is now a-days to mane the baby, pomilers over that point of future career. And very wisely—for before a body can have a career it must be discinguished from other bodies by a name Mamma however, has not always a jayed the right of naming the baby. This flice, with other rights, is the gift of time to her—it has grown into favor with pepu's right to read the newspaper.

THE ONLY ONE HAVING newspaper.
Among the O ientals, the Hindoos prescribed that the father alone should solumly name a child, and then only male chi dren. A Grock in cld times had but one name, generally the name of his grandfuther; he received this at the hands of his father. Roman children were named in like number. With the Roman people, however, there areas a father of the respect of the proper of the prop ike manner. With the Roman people, however, there arose e fashlom for several names, one that grew out of fouily pride, civic honors, and the privileges of Roman citizenship. Exmity names seem to have originated with the Rumans, indicating among other things, woman's social influence in the mingling of the maternal family name with that of the sternal branch.

But a study of aurnames historicelly is of little import to the question. What shall we name the baby? Let us see how this question is generally answered to Polland, after the introduc into Christianity, all the men were buptized Peter or Pul, and all the women Margaria or Catharing. The Italians seem to take few church names, althrugh the country is or was supposed to get the country is or was althrugh the country is or was supposed to get the country is or was althrugh the country is or was supposed to get the country of the said of the country of the said of the said of the country of items, and the said of direct Chrinde, Bastrice, and Laura. England, whiring round in a heredizary circle, prefars a mame he has we they are did and their own. France, the country of ideas, relecta its names in the world of sentiment. In Americar the biptismal name is, if our observation he extensive enough, an arbitrary one and the gift of the mother cuitely.

If her tastes have been literary (which are apt to recode at the approach of children) she may, perhaps, preserve a souverier of a favorile character in a romance—especially if her husband fall below the sentimental standard; or inally she may be prompted by the affections, and in spite of religious, ancestral, historic, or romantic proclivities, think that name the most listic principle of sound. We do not mean to say Illat a mother should name her child Appoles, Michael Angelo, or Riffaelle, or after the pointer of the last "sublime portrayal of Gods lle veens," but that with a proscience of her sons conlivated issless he should study the music of his name as a veest unleaded to endure maternal tastes founded on conceits. Many a man who owes his baptismal appendage to biblic, parfeitic, or remantic notions, wishes his name was left to his own selection.
